

Athena's Words of Wisdom

[total lines: 24]

When I have ceased to break my wings
Against the falseness of things
And learned that comprises wait
Behind any hardly open gate

When I have looked life in the eyes
Grown and calm and very, very wise
Life will have given me the truth
And taken exchange my youth

We do not care, that much is clear
None of us care nowhere near
It, we do not cherish
For that reason, mankind comes to perish

To think is much against the will
Better and easier to kill
This I know and know before
Don't hide your heart or lock that door.

It is time to stand and be responsible
Like adults say "Anything is possible"
You have come here to learn and grow
And with each passing day, you are doing so

We pull back when we are going to take a huge leap
And then we wonder why it is us to always fall and weep
So share what you have learned
And through I, Athena, they will come to know
